Chapter 1 by thepinkdolphin

As I walk around the beach, humans stare at me because of my complexion. Curse you blue skin! Well, as I walk around, I wait until the sun goes down and they leave, I jump into the ocean, and feel my legs turn into my tail, I breath a sigh of relief. My purple hair spreading in the water, and my little pig hands working hard to swim to my cave. I had not been here in ages.

Chapter 2 by Phantim

I am glad to be back. Living in the world of human is rough for me. I used to be one of them, which makes it even harder feeling so different now. I'm not sure how this all happened, but I believe it was from eating canned tuna. Don't worry though, not all tuna was like this, I think somehow they had caught a Merwif in the nets, and didn't bother to separate it from the tuna... the meat all got ground together and one tuna sandwich later here I am; A Merwif.

The changes to my body weren't so bad, my hair turned purple and my skin turned a pale light-blue. Some of the boys think it's cute, that's nice. I play it off by dressing emo, most people don't even question the purple hair now. Still, it's nice to be away from the judging eyes, just swimming around my little cave. The only place that was mine, and only mine. Only today, it

I sighed, relieved. I had expected it to be a fishing net.

That was the great thing about being a werewolf, also. I'm telling you - it was one strange can of tuna. I could communicate with animals, both land-locked and sea lubbing alike. I rubbed the snout of my new friend and crooned something in his tongue. He rumbled, blushed, and swam out of the cave as quickly as if he had stumbled in on me getting changed. I giggled. He was a sweetheart.

I settled into the cave - now alone - and picked up a mirror. I looked much more at home here than I did up there. Had I not had a reason to return to the world of humans, well, I never would have.

Chapter 5 by Mrs. Draco Malfoy

Albeit, my reason wasn't a very good one, but it was still a reason. His name is Jace.

Chapter 6 by SaintSayaka

He's been my boyfriend for months now, and is the only human to know my secret. Sometimes, he even accompanies me into the water, though he obviously can't go as deep as me. But to fix that, he's taking scuba diving lessons. How sweet is that?

It's been pretty idyllic between us, and I wouldn't want to change a thing.

Chapter 7 by adware

Divorce is a reality nobody likes to acknowledge. It's certainly not a word that was on my mind back in those sugar-coated days. The idea that absolutely anything could sour what we had had was a concept I had never even considered.

That was before he cheated on me with another.

Chapter 8 by Kittyjcat101

I cry myself to sleep every night. Every time I think I'm over him I'm not. Every time I get close to the surface I can see his face.

I am all alone here trapped in this world. I try to bring myself to go back to being a human but I just can't. Too many memories, so much pain.

I swim to the bottom of the sea and lay on some algae. My eyes slowly close.

I never woke up from that nap...
